HAS SUCCESSFULLY COMPLETED

Behavioral Economics Course

The CERGE-EI Foundation Distance Learning Program Behavioral Economics course consists of 27 academic hours of online, live-streamed intensive lectures, with a focus on student interaction throughout. To successfully pass the course, students are required to attend and actively participate in the lectures and exercise sessions, submit a report on a research paper, and pass four online quizzes and a comprehensive final exam. The total expected workload of the course is 125 hours.

This course aims to acquaint students with the basics of the main behavioral theories and empirical methods commonly used to test theoretical predictions. The knowledge obtained in this course may be useful for both professional life and study strategies. Upon successful completion of this course, students should be able to understand the conceptual framework of behavioral economics and its tools, apply insights from psychology when predicting or analyzing economic decision-making, and critically discuss the assumptions of traditional economic theory.
